Host Hotel: Radisson

Please be aware that upon check in at the hotel, you will be asked for a credit card for incidental charges. It's standard practice for most hotels; a temporary hold (also called a pre-authorization) is placed on your credit card. This hold is not a charge — it's more like a security deposit. If you didn't incur any extra charges during your stay, the full hold amount is released without a charge. It may take a few business days (up to 7) for the hold to disappear from your statement.

The hold is usually $100USD/night, so a $300USD hold for the typical 3night SeeSGU visit.

A Few Tips:

- Ask at check-in how much the hold will be and how long it will take to be released.
- Avoid using a debit card if you're worried about temporarily reducing your available funds. Instead, use a major credit card like MasterCard, Visa, or American Express.
